MESSAGE FROM PATRONS

There are numerous individuals who possess exceptional talents but fail to utilize them effectively. It is often the case that individuals who are less gifted but demonstrate a strong work ethic and determination can surpass those who rely solely on their talent. With hard work and a healthy amount of determination, anyone can achieve success, even if they lack natural talent in a particular area. Consider the many individuals with remarkable talents in the field of law - only those who are willing to go the extra mile are able to achieve success. Individuals with lesser talents can outperform more talented individuals if they possess an unwavering commitment to doing exceptional work.

ABOUT INDORE

Indore is located 200 km west of the capital city Bhopal and has a population of approximately 30 lakhs, making it the 14th most populous city in India. Its greater metropolitan area houses 2.5 million people and is known for its industrial, cosmopolitan, and prosperous nature, similar to Mumbai. It is often called Mini-Mumbai due to its resemblance to the city's lifestyle. Indore is a melting pot of different ethnic groups, such as Marathi, Gujarati, Marwari, Muslims, and Sindhi, and is also a promising educational hub, home to renowned technological and management institutes like IIT and IIM.

Indore owes its early growth to trade and commerce, which is still a dominant feature of the city. The diversity of Indore's culture is visible in its food habits, with a wide variety of flavors and tastes praised by food lovers across the country. Indore is known for its popular variety of Namkeens, a treasure trove of culinary information that includes different kinds of taste buds. Spicy Chat Food, such as panipuri, vadas, samosas, and the very delectable cholabaturas, are the first choice of the people.

Indore is famous for other dishes like Dal-Bafla,

NihariGosht, and Bafla-Gosht in the Malwa region. The city also has a wide range of drinks and thirst quenchers like Shikanji, a fascinating combination of milk and dry fruits, and the good old lassi consisting of yoghurt flavor. Restaurants and eateries offer appetizers like Jal-Jira and Santrola, and the majority of the city's people are vegetarians, so there is no shortage of vegetarian eateries.

Indore has been awarded the title of the cleanest city in India under the Swachh Bharat Survey, and with its overall development, it has become a great choice for investment from various MNCs, real estate developers, organizations, and entrepreneurs. The city's rapid development in IT sectors, hospitality, commerce houses, and other allied services has piqued the interest of investors. Giant Indian companies like Infosys and TCS have started the construction of their respective offices in Indore near Super Corridor, creating around 1 lakh jobs in the next 5-6 years. Visitors are advised to try the city's street food sold in food galleries and eateries like Sarafa and ChappanDukan.
