About the NLIU Cell for Law and Technology

National Law Institute University (NLIU), Bhopal is one of the premier legal institutions established in the year 1997. The NLIU Cell for Law and Technology (NLIU-CLT) was established at the National Law Institute University in October 2019 under the mentorship of Dr. Atul Kumar Pandey, the faculty-in-charge.

The Cell was established with the aim to create a platform to raise awareness about the interface of technology and law. The depiction of the societal effects of technology in science fiction and other media had a huge impact on the creation of the Cell.

When it comes to the intricate interactions between technology and legal policy, the Cell wants to be ahead of the curve. It has been constantly taking efforts in engaging in a range of activities to maintain pace with its vision. One of the aspects through which the Cell attempts to accomplish its vision is by publishing the Blog for Law and Technology (BLT), a well-known peer-reviewed blog that provides a platform for students, professionals and scholars to share their thoughts and put in motion a discussion on Technology Law.

About Tectonic

The NLIU-CLT Technology and Law Fair: Tectonic 2024 is a major flagship event organized by the NLIU Cell for Law and Technology annually. Tectonic provides a unique platform for students, researchers, and practitioners to converge and engage in thought-provoking discussions on the latest developments in technology law and its profound impact on society.

The Fair encompasses a diverse range of activities, including workshops, panel discussions, and competitions, all designed to provide participants with unparalleled insights into the legal and policy issues surrounding technology.

The Round Table Conference

The Cell for Law and Technology is excited to organise the third iteration of the Round Table Conference this year, which will include participation by the corps d'elite of the trade from across the nation and abroad. Industry experts from across the globe shall present their viewpoints and all the participants of Techo tonic shall witness it on our scenic campus. A healthy discussion shall be promoted.

The NLIU-Ikigai Policy Case Competition

The NLIU-Ikigai Policy Case Competition is a one-of-a-kind competition in India, is hosted annually by the Cell for Law and Technology (as part of Techo tonic) in order to inspire students to think critically, analytically, and creatively and to put forth policy proposals on real-life concerns. The Cell is excited to organize the third iteration of the Competition in collaboration with Ikigai Law, which will include participation from law students throughout the nation.

Teams shall be asked to put forth policy proposals that will address the policy questions put before them. The submissions made by them will undergo review by professionals and participating teams will be expected to give an oral presentation before a panel of judges. The winner shall be decided on the basis of both written submission and oral presentation.
