"UNCHARTED FACETS WITHIN THE LEGAL MILIEU ISSUES AND RESOLUTIONS - A MULTIDISCIPLINARY APPROACH"

22nd & 23rd February 2024

(Hybrid Mode)

"UNEXPLORED PATHS LEAD TO UNDISCOVERED TREASURES."

-Constance Chuks Friday

The legal landscape is dynamic, constantly evolving in response to societal changes, technological advancements, and emerging global issues. To navigate this complex terrain, we present a comprehensive legal seminar aimed at delving into contemporary legal challenges and exploring the evolving jurisprudence that accompanies them. In this era of multidisciplinary study and research Amity Law School, Lucknow finds it suitable to organize a National Seminar. This seminar will provide ample opportunity to the researchers of science, technology, management and legal domain to present their paper and get enriched.

As the evolving landscape of knowledge and innovation demands the boundaries between academic disciplines are becoming increasingly porous. Recognizing the importance of collaboration and cross-pollination of ideas, we propose a multidisciplinary seminar titled "UNCHARTED FACETS WITHIN THE LEGAL MILIEU ISSUES AND RESOLUTIONS - A MULTIDISCIPLINARY APPROACH" from 22nd to 23rd of February 2024. This seminar aims to bring together experts and enthusiasts from various fields to foster intellectual exchange, promote interdisciplinary understanding, and address complex challenges facing our society.

India, with its rich cultural diversity, legal frameworks, and scientific advancements, experiences intricate socio-legal-scientific dynamics. The scientific landscape in India has seen substantial growth, particularly in areas like, Firstly, Intellectual Property Rights and Biodiversity delve into the ethical use of genetic resources, protection of traditional knowledge linked to biodiversity, and the equitable sharing of benefits from biological resources. Patent Reforms, especially regarding Utility and Software Patents, are subject to vigorous debate, influencing the extent of patent grants and potential consequences for innovation. These discussions collectively mold the global intellectual property landscape, shaped by international dialogues, national legislations, and ongoing debates within academic and industrial spheres.

Secondly, Artificial Intelligence (AI) in India showcases transformative impacts across sectors. Generative AI in Virtual Reality reshapes entertainment, while AI-driven diagnostics in healthcare accelerates disease identification. In Fraud Detection, AI scrutinizes vast datasets, fortifying financial and cybersecurity domains. CRM benefits from AI insights, enabling personalized interactions, heightened customer satisfaction, and targeted marketing. Virtual Assistants exemplify AI's integration into daily life, streamlining human-computer interactions and marking a paradigm shift in technological innovation.

Thirdly, International Trade Law in India grapples with issues like Current Account Imbalances and historical perspectives on Trade Wars. Globalization, fostering economic interconnectedness, generates opportunities and challenges, leading to Winners and Losers in the global economic landscape. Global Value Chains present evolving opportunities and challenges, requiring nations to navigate changing economic landscapes and geopolitical considerations. The emerging concern of the Carbon Footprint of Global Trade necessitates policies in International Trade Law that balance economic growth, address inequality, and promote environmental sustainability.

Lastly in the digital realm, Cyber Law in India is indispensable, addressing a spectrum of issues crucial for maintaining a secure online environment. Cyber Forensics & Electronic Evidence play a pivotal role in identifying and prosecuting cybercrimes. The integration of AI and Cloud Computing introduces new legal challenges, encompassing data ownership, privacy concerns, and liability for AI-driven decisions. Legal considerations for Online-Consumers in Cyberspace, Banking Financial Fraud, and emerging technologies like IoT and Blockchains highlight the need for ongoing adaptation of Cyber Laws to address the complexities of the digital era, safeguarding individuals, businesses, and the overall integrity of cyberspace. The collective efforts across these legal and scientific domains shape India's evolving role on the global stage.

The societal impact of these advancements varies, leading to questions of accessibility, ethical considerations, and social inclusion. Moreover, India faces significant environmental challenges, and its legal system has responded with a robust framework for environmental protection. However, the practical implementation of these laws and their impact on diverse communities are subjects of ongoing debate and litigation. The legal system is adapting to address these challenges while ensuring innovation is not stifled. The intersection of science, technology, and law is evident in the realm of intellectual property. Understanding and navigating these socio-legal-scientific dynamics is crucial for policymakers, legal professionals, scientists, and the broader society to foster holistic development and address the unique challenges and opportunities presented by India's diverse landscape.
