CALL FOR PAPERS - 2025

Emerging trends of AI and Law: Exploring the Intersection of Artificial Intelligence and Legal Frameworks

SPECIAL VOLUME ON LAW AND TECHNOLOGY

The SRMUH Law Review invites academicians, researchers, scholars, practitioners, and experts in the field of law to contribute their original research articles, case studies, and critical analyses for Volume 3, Issue 1 of the Journal. As rightly underscored by Elon Musk, I'm increasingly inclined to think that there should be some regulatory oversight, maybe at the national and international level, just to make sure that we don't do something very foolish. I mean with artificial intelligence we're summoning the demon. The theme for Volume 3 is "Emerging trends of AI and Law: Exploring the Intersection of Artificial Intelligence and Legal Frameworks" accentuates the dynamic transformations and changes, taking place in the legal frameworks due to brand-new challenges and opportunity in the domain of artificial intelligence. Undoubtedly, the confluence of artificial intelligence and legal frameworks will dictate the future of law. Surely the urgent need today is to improve upon existing laws to ameliorate the disastrous risks which emerging technologies present-such as Deepfakes and AI-enabled financial fraud. These very instances represent misuse of AI that are screaming for legislation to provide for the people's right and social integrity.

AI's growing role in criminal investigations and trials is yet another major turning point. Digital evidence, cyber forensics, and artificial intelligence tools could change investigations and trials with innovations like virtual court hearings. While these improvements are efficient and accessible, they also raise issues of data privacy, cybersecurity, and discrimination against justice. The balance between using artificial intelligence for the technological upper hand in the court and protecting individual rights remains one of the most pertinent questions demanding serious contemplation.

Another pivotal transformation is the AI adoption in victim rights and restorative justice programs. By automating the claims submission process and providing live updates, an AI system could further streamline victim compensation processes and services. Such systems would need to be built from the ground up to ensure that they treat all participants fairly and do not deepen existing inequities. In a similar vein, AI tools could contribute to rehabilitating juvenile offenders with personalized assessments, tracking progress, and ensuring rehabilitation programs' effectiveness.

We invite researchers, scholars, practitioners, and experts in the field of law or interested researchers from other disciplines to contribute their original research articles, case studies, andcritical analyses.
