About The Conference

The International Conference on Comparative Law (ICCL) is a leading global forum that brings together judges, senior advocates, research scholars, practitioners, policymakers and thought leaders to reflect on developments across diverse legal systems. Over time, ICCL has earned a strong reputation for academic rigour, international participation and meaningful dialogue. Its edited volumes—Global Perspectives and Emerging Issues in Comparative Law, Comparative Law: Unravelling Global Legal Systems, Comparative Approaches in Law and Policy, Comparative Law: Its Facets, Nuances and Intricacies, and Legal Frameworks for Sustainable Global Business—continue to serve as important resources for researchers around the world.

A defining feature of ICCL is the partnership between the School of Business & Law, Edith Cowan University (Western Australia) and the School of Law, Galgotias University (India). Together, these institutions have shaped the conference into a truly international space that encourages collaborative research, comparative analysis and academic exchange. Their joint efforts have expanded ICCL's global footprint, led to co-edited publications and created opportunities for faculty engagement and cross-border dialogue.

The School of Law, Galgotias University: A Leading Centre for Comparative Law Research

The School of Law, Galgotias University (SoL-GU) has emerged as a leading institution for comparative legal studies. Through its Centre for Comparative Law, SoL-GU has expanded international collaborations, enhanced academic exchanges, and strengthened global research networks. The success of ICCL 2025 in hybrid mode demonstrated Galgotias University's commitment to international engagement, supported by its strong faculty, robust research ecosystem, and evolving global partnerships. This collaboration continues to elevate the ICCL platform to greater international visibility and academic excellence.

Key Highlights of ICCL 2025 (6th Edition)

ICCL 2025 received over 380 abstracts and 185 full-paper submissions from scholars across Australia, USA, UK, Europe, Asia and Africa. The conference was supported by leading bodies and institutions such as the International Law School Association (ILSA), the Council of Australian Law Deans (CALD) and multiple National Law Universities and international academic partners, reflecting the global trust and academic influence ICCL has cultivated.

ICCL 2026: The 7th Edition

Scheduled for 4–5 April 2026, ICCL 2026 aims to build upon the achievements of its previous editions by expanding Indo-Australian academic collaboration and deepening comparative legal research. Co-organised by the School of Law, Galgotias University and the School of Business & Law, Edith Cowan University, the 7th edition will explore emerging comparative legal transformations, global governance challenges and cross-system legal harmonisation. The conference will emphasise high-quality international scholarly submissions, collaborative research opportunities, internationally indexed proceedings, expanded academic networks for students and faculty, enhanced global visibility for Galgotias University and strengthened partnerships with leading law schools and institutions worldwide.

2026 Conference Theme

In an era defined by rapid globalization, technological integration, cross-border mobility, and evolving governance structures, legal systems across the world are increasingly confronted with shared challenges and collective responsibilities. Comparative law provides an essential analytical framework for examining the convergences and divergences across legal traditions, enabling jurisdictions to refine their laws through mutual learning and contextual adaptation. The modern relevance of comparative law is evident in constitutional developments, advancements in human rights jurisprudence, digital transformation of legal systems, and the harmonisation of commercial and regulatory norms. The Indian Constitution itself is a remarkable outcome of comparative legal borrowing, while contemporary Indian and Australian courts continue to draw from global norms to strengthen socio-economic rights, gender justice, environmental protection, corporate accountability, and technological regulation.

Against this backdrop, ICCL 2026 provides a global platform for scholars, judges, practitioners, and researchers to engage in meaningful comparative analysis of two or more jurisdictions—with India or Australia serving as the foundational base for comparison.

School of Business and Law, Edith Cowan University, Western Australia

Edith Cowan University (ECU) is immensely proud to be named in honour of Edith Dircksey Cowan OBE. While Edith Cowan is most famously known as the first woman to be elected to an Australian parliament, making her one of the first women to be elected to a British parliament in the world, this was only one of many outstanding contributions she made to the state of Western Australia. The university has more than 30,000 undergraduate and postgraduate students, originating from more than 100 countries. ECU's higher education delivery approach has been rewarded with five-star ratings for undergraduate teaching quality for the past 17 consecutive years, with top ratings for overall experience, learning resources, skills development, and student support, in the Good Universities Guide, Australia's largest course comparison website. The School of Business and Law provides a supportive environment, high-quality teaching and learning, excellent facilities and resources, and engaged applied research to ensure our graduates are industry-ready. The School is accredited by AACSB International. Less than six per cent of the world's schools offering business degree programs hold this prestigious accreditation.
